Bachelor of Interior Design (BID)

Interior Design is the study of total creative solutions of an open internal space. It encompasses the conceptual planning, aesthetic and technical solutions applied to achieve the desired result. The history of interior design delivers the inside story of 6000 years of personal and public space. Interior design is the field with unclear boundaries, in which constructions, architecture, art, and craft, technology and product design all overlaps. These topics are woven together in a fascinating narrative that runs from cave dwelling and temple architecture through Gothic cathedrals and Renaissance palaces onto the grand civic spaces of the 19th century and the sleek interior of modern skyscrapers.

Interior design is both art and science that involve the adoption of natural and human made environment to culture, social, physiological, economic, historical and behavioral activities of people. Interior design engages both the public and private scales of buildings. The satisfaction of the users' need and their preferences for function, material and aesthetic determine the quality of an interior environment.

Bachelor in Interior Design [BID] is the three years [Six Semester] full time course designed to produce professional Interior designers in Nepal.
